Einstein's 3-Second Test Shortcuts

Is it on the test? Relativity took ten years. Here it is in three seconds per tip, as the tutoring centre ordered. Every tip is a joke.

JOKE SHEET: DO NOT USE IN A REAL EXAM

None of these will raise your grade. Please study. The only one that works is number 8, and only on parents.

1 Relativity, shortened

It is all relative. Write "relative" next to any answer you are unsure about. Done.

3 sec

2 E = mc², shorter

Can you make it shorter? E = m. Can you make it shorter? E. We stopped there. Nobody was happy.

1 sec

3 Multiple choice

If unsure, time is relative. So is the right answer. Circle the one that looks calmest.

3 sec

4 Time dilation trick

Run to your desk very fast. Time slows down. You now have extra minutes. The invigilator disagrees.

3 sec

5 Essay questions

Start with "from the point of view of the observer". Fill the rest with thoughtful staring.

3 sec

6 Maths questions

Hold your breath and imagine the numbers at the speed of light. They get shorter. Write that down.

3 sec

7 Gravity check

Drop your pencil. If it falls, gravity still works and you may continue guessing.

3 sec

8 Parent protection

When asked "is that on the test?", forward the question to the parents' group chat. It will take three days.

3 sec

Pre-test checklist

- Hair: messy (important).
- Pocket watch: slow.
- Snacks: yes.
- Studying: optional (it is not).

Guaranteed an A or we go to the tutor next door

Einstein's verdict

"I explained the universe. You asked if it is on the test. It is. Please read page one." (Not a real quote.)

Joke document. A parody sheet for a cartoon physicist. Not real study advice, not a real tutoring service, no guarantees of anything. Do the homework.